TOM BULLEIT'S JOURNAL

It's springtime in the South. The dogwood is in bloom, and from green, rolling fields to the glorious Appalachian Mountains, we Kentuckians come alive to the tune of birdsongs and the trumpet's blare at post time. After winter's chill, we look forward to warm days and a smooth sip of Bulleit Bourbon.

TOM BULLEIT'S JOURNAL

For many Kentucky sports fans, springtime means basketball. From the sport's most renowned tournament to backyard hoops, everyone loves to hit the courts. And what better way to enjoy watching the game than with a cool glass of "Kentucky Tea"—just an ounce and a half of Bulleit Bourbon poured over a tall glass of ice and filled with water, with a squeeze of lemon.

Sure, basketball has its fans, but it's the Sport of Kings that captivates genuine Kentuckians. Bring out the Mint Juleps—it's horse racing time! Fans flock to enjoy a day at the races. There's something for everyone, from the open-air grandstands to the high-class box seats for a sophisticated afternoon to see-and-be-seen

In our family, race day starts with a leisurely lunch in the clubhouse. When we can, we visit the paddocks to pet the horses and meet the jockeys. Then it's back to the clubhouse, for an afternoon of genteel conversation, friendly wagers, and the thrills of the track.

Whether spring or summertime, one thing all fans of the track agree on is the drink of choice. A trip to the track simply requires a mint julep, but the South's favorite cocktail is also a great accompaniment to an outdoor barbecue or the big game at your favorite bar. Wherever you enjoy your julep, a few key steps guarantee a sip of springtime. Use only fresh mint. Muddle it well, and steep it with sugar. And, of course, use only Bulleit Bourbon over crushed ice for smooth refreshment. Then raise a glass. They're off!

With best personal regards, Tom Bulleit
